Dance show crown goes to Lethbridge resident

TV Tara-Jean Popowich of Lethbridge, Alta., has won the second season of So You Think You Can Dance Canada.

The 20-year-old earned the most viewer votes to nab the $100,000 grand prize and a new car in yesterday's finale on CTV.

Tara-Jean Popowich

Popowich specializes in contemporary dance and was touted as one of the frontrunners going in to the finale.

Judges said she had "star quality" but was also humble and could touch people's emotions with her moves.

This season's Top 10 will tour across Canada starting Nov. 25 in Kelowna, B.C. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Women wait for rights

Bill on matrimonial homes overdue, aboriginal elder insists

FocusOn First Nations

LAURA EGGERTSON
for Metro Canada

Despite the federal government's promise to resume deliberations this fall about legislation to ensure that First Nations' women on reserves have rights to their matrimonial homes, no debate has yet been scheduled on the parliamentary calendar.

The law is long overdue, many aboriginal women say.

"It's about time," says Shirley Williams, an Ojibwa and Odawa elder who teaches native studies at Trent University in Peterborough, Ont.

Bill C-8 would ensure women on reserves have the same legal rights as other Canadians to matrimonial property, meaning they and their children are entitled to court-ordered protection to remain in their home in cases of domestic violence.

Currently, many victimized women on reserves and their children must leave their homes because there is no legal framework protecting their right to stay.

The legislation closes a legal gap the Supreme Court and a legal action by the Native Women's Association of Canada pointed out, says Line Paré, director general of external relations and gender issues for Indian and Northern Affairs Canada.

This bill follows legislation the federal government passed in 2008, re-

Ojibwa and Odawa elder Shirley Williams, who teaches students at Trent University in Peterborough, Ont., says it's high time Bill C-8 became law this fall. The legislation ensures women on reserves have the same legal rights as other Canadians to matrimonial property.

pealing Section 67 of the Canadian Human Rights Act. The section previously exempted First Nations people from claiming remedies to discrimination arising from the Indian Act.

"There's still a lot of physical abuse and violence on reserves towards women, because according to the Indian Act, men are the head of the households," Williams says.

Williams attributes that inequality to assimilation and education about the gender roles that the Europeans instilled.

"That's how we were trained ... that men ruled the world. That's not the way it was before the Europeans came to Canada," Williams insists.

Beverly Jacobs, president of the Native Women's Association of Canada, is also concerned about the level of domestic violence and inequity aboriginal women face on and off reserve. The new legislation is only an interim step, she stresses.

"This matrimonial real property legislation doesn't work," she says. "There were other issues that needed to be addressed — like violence, housing and access to justice. You can't just have a piece of legislation drafted without acknowledging the non-legislative pieces that go with it."

Those pieces include safe housing, access to lawyers and money to pay them, Jacobs points out.

Paré says native women can use legal aid programs, but she acknowledges there is no additional funding to increase that aid in this bill.

Threat won't halt plans for interchange, mayor says

KRISTA SYLVESTER
krista.sylvester@metronews.ca

DISPUTE Despite the threat of a lawsuit by the Tsuu T'ina Nation, Mayor Dave Bronconnier said the city will go ahead with plans for the 37th Street and Glenmore Trail interchange.

Whatever the motive may be for the Tsuu T'ina Nation's threats, Bronconnier said he would continue to do what is in the best interests of the city and its citizens.

"I'm not sure what the strategy of the Tsuu T'ina may be, but Calgarians' perspective is we waited five years for a decision, the people voted no, and we will respect their decision and continue on," Bronconnier said.

In a letter sent to the mayor this month, Chief Sanford Big Plume put the city "on notice" that the Tsuu T'ina Nation "does not consent to any road construction on or near Tsuu T'ina Nation lands."

Bronconnier said the interchange is being constructed to ease congestion and on the city's land.

"Our motives are simply to fix the roads, and we don't need to ask for their approval," he added.

A spokesperson for the Tsuu T'ina did not return repeated calls for comment.

Police seek suspects in shooting

Several people are being questioned in connection with a southeast shooting Sunday morning, police said. Police responded to the 4300 block of 14 Ave SE around 7 a.m. yesterday, locating an 18-year-old man inside a residence with a non-life-threatening gunshot wound. EMS transported the man to hospital, according to police. Anyone with information is asked to call District 4 GIU at 403-567-6400.

City man campaigns for return of beer from 20 years ago

krista.sylvester@metronews.ca

Molson Calgary beer. Not sold in Calgary.

Calgarian Darren Havelock is trying to change that with a mycalgary beer.ca, a website designed to attract Molson's Calgary Beer back to the city, though the suds haven't been sold here for 20 years.

"I think it's a part of our heritage, it's a beer that was first brewed in Calgary, and I think people would love to have it back in the city," Havelock said, adding he would like to see the beer here even for the upcoming Grey Cup.

The only problem is, he says, the beer is only sold in Saskatchewan.

"I have been trying to get Molson to see the market they are missing out on. But it's frustrating because they just say it doesn't make financial sense Calgarian Darren Havelock shows off his civic pride and taste in Calgary Beer. Havelock is lobbying Molson to bring the beer back to the city in time for the Grey Cup.

for them but that doesn't make sense to me."

Havelock said he will make the nine-hour trip to the province to pick up the beer he loves so much a few times a year, but he says he shouldn't have to.

Molson spokesperson Adam Moffat says the company appreciates Havelock's passion and enthusiasm for the beer, but it doesn't make economical sense for them to bring the beer back to the city — not even for the Grey Cup. "We understand it's about civic pride, but there are just too many challenges and it doesn't make sense strategically. One person does not really make a market," Moffat said.

Stepping into the streets, to get youth out

krista.sylvester@metronews.ca

EVENT Calgarians stepped to the streets yesterday morning in support of helping homeless youth step off the streets.

One hundred Calgarians participated in the third annual Steps OFF The Street five-kilometre walk and run yesterday in Inglewood and raised $3,000 to go towards The Doorway, according to director of operations Robb Price.

"This is really about raising awareness and funds to help get youth off the streets and transitioned into mainstream living," Price said after the event.

The Doorway helps people between the ages of 17 to 24 get off the streets and into sustainable living and Price said the program has a 70 per cent success rate.

"This is really important for them and the community really came together to show their support. It was fun and a lot of people ended up running instead of walking."

Alberta MLA for Calgary-Montrose Manmeet Bhullar was on-hand at the event to show his appreciation.

"I think events like this help change stereotypes and perceptions and it's really important to engage the community," Bhullar said.

Premier faces tough session

POLITICS The stakes are high for Alberta Premier Ed Stelmach as he heads into a normally quiet fall sitting of the legislature.

Recent polls suggest his popularity has tanked, and some disgruntled Progressive Conservatives are joining an upstart right-wing party, the Wildrose Alliance. On top of that, Stelmach will have to face Tory delegates on Nov. 7 for a mandatory leadership review vote.

He has been sharpening his political message in recent weeks, with photo opportunities and a 20-minute provincewide address broadcast earlier this month.

"This isn't about questioning the leadership of me personally or if it's the right or wrong direction," Stelmach says. "It won't be any different from any other session."

Rwanda trip 'life-changing'

Teacher gains lessons on hope, forgiveness and resources

KRISTA SYLVESTER
krista.sylvester@metronews.ca

Having just returned from a "life-changing" experience in Rwanda, a Calgary teacher wants to share her experiences in hopes of changing the world.

Jennifer Shaw felt like she was missing something from her life, and jumped at the opportunity to embark on a "Destination Life Change" trip to Rwanda with World Vision this month.

"I was there for only two weeks, but learned and experienced more in that time than I have in years. What I learned was the unimaginable importance of having hope in your life," Shaw said.

Shaw helped build a house, visited families and met people who 15 years ago witnessed their families' and friends' brutal murders.

"What I learned is the unbelievable power of forgiveness," she said. "These people made the choice to forgive in order to free themselves from the weight of anger and resentment."

Shaw said she wanted to make a difference in the lives of those in Rwanda, but she felt the differences in her own life when she returned.

She says she has become more grateful, forgiving, and thinks twice about how she spends her time, money and resources like water.

"I bought two coffees and two scones for over $14 when it only takes $40 a month to provide a child with education, health care, clean water, emergency supplies and a future," she said.

Ad drive targets flu-shot shy

A sweeping ad campaign is planned over the next few weeks to prod reluctant Canadians to get the H1N1 flu shot. The new campaign comes as officials try to persuade a wary public to roll up their sleeves for the vaccine — though the ads won't be ready when most provinces begin their vaccination campaigns today. The new batch will urge people to get the swine flu shot instead of sneezing into their sleeves. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Flu poses a danger to homeless, say advocates

HEALTH In one of Canada's first sweeps of H1N1 inoculation, street nurses will be ducking in and out of alleys on Vancouver's Downtown Eastside, vaccinating the homeless, the down-trodden and the drug-addicted.

On the other side of the country, H1N1 syringes will be popped into the arms of the down-and-out at some of the bigger shelters in Montreal and Toronto.

But many of those who work closely with the homeless hope the efforts will be enough to keep H1N1 from striking a population segment that's among society's most vulnerable. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Heart signs gender neutral: Study

Heart attack symptoms in men and women are more alike than some previous studies have indicated, according to research unveiled at the Canadian Cardiovascular Congress.

No difference was found between men and women in the reporting of chest pain, the most common symptom associated with a heart attack, and other typical symptoms, such as sweating, shortness of breath and pain in the left arm, said study co-author Martha Mackay, a cardiac nurse and clinical research fellow and doctoral student at the University of British Columbia School of Nursing.

"Some studies have shown no differences...but almost as many studies showed that there were differences, and that women reported chest pain less often," said Mackay, who is also with St.

Paul's Hospital Heart Centre in Vancouver.

But one difference was detected, she said, as women reported jaw, neck and throat pain significantly more often than men. THE CANADIAN PRESS

More than 140 killed in Baghdad bombings

A pair of suicide car bombings yesterday devastated the heart of Iraq's capital, killing at least 147 people in the country's deadliest attack in more than two years. The bombs targeted two government buildings and called into question Iraq's ability to protect its people as U.S. forces withdraw.

The bombings show that insurgents still have the ability to launch horrific attacks even as violence has dropped dramatically in Iraq. Many fear such attacks will only increase as Iraq prepares for crucial January elections.

The dead included 35 employees at the Ministry of Justice and at least 25 staff members of the Baghdad Provincial Council, said police and medical officials speaking on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak to the media. At least 721 people were wounded, including three American contractors.

The street where the blasts occurred had just been reopened to vehicle traffic six months ago. Shortly after, blast walls were repositioned to allow traffic closer to the government buildings. Such changes were touted by Iraq's Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki as a sign that safety was returning to the city.

The attacks occurred just hours before Iraq's top leadership was scheduled to meet with heads of political parties in order to reach a compromise on election guidelines needed to hold the January vote.

The initial investigation suggested the vehicles, each loaded down with more than 1,500 pounds of explosives, might have passed through some security checkpoints before hitting their destination, said Maj. Gen. Qassim al-Mousawi, a spokesman for the city's operations command centre.

There have been no claims of responsibility so far, but massive car bombs have been the hallmark of the Sunni insurgents seeking to overthrow the country's Shiite-dominated government. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canadians not welcome in Libya: Gadhafi

FOREIGN AFFAIRS Canadian travellers have been told they're not welcome in Libya, in an apparent reprisal for Canada's near tongue-lashing of Moammar Gadhafi.

Gadhafi cancelled a planned stopover in Newfoundland last month after the Harper government made public its intention to scold the Libyan leader over the hero's welcome Libya gave a man convicted in the 1988 Lockerbie bombing.

Projects at risk?

• The move could put at risk development projects, including the geological work being done by at least one Calgary company on underwater aquifers in Libya. Pure Technologies has employees who travel in and out of Libya who help to monitor and maintain the infrastructure of the Great Man River Project, the world's largest irrigation project.

Since then, Gadhafi has made clear to officials within Libya that no visas are to be granted to Canadians wanting to enter the country.

That has left some Canadians who were part of recent tourist groups travelling in the Middle East and North Africa in the lurch.

Critics blast Obama stand as 'Nixonian'

President Barack Obama's stand against Fox News and other organizations viewed as hostile to his administration is being roundly derided as "Nixonian" by critics that include political pundits, journalists and legislators who remember Richard Nixon's paranoid and divisive presidency.

Longtime Republican Lamar Alexander, who once worked as an aide to Nixon, took to the Senate floor last week to draw ominous comparisons between Obama administration tactics and those of his former boss.

White House correspondent Helen Thomas has railed against attempts by

White House officials to control the media, saying their efforts have been more aggressive than they were in the years when she covered the Nixon administration.

Mainstream media, even those organizations considered Obama-friendly, have widely criticized the White House for its war against Fox, citing the Nixon years.

Many observers say he's left himself vulnerable to such criticism after he campaigned for president vowing to do things differently in Washington by ending partisan bickering and healing political divisions.

PROTECT YOURSELF FROM THE H1N1 FLU VIRUS

The H1N1 flu virus is different from regular seasonal flu. This is a new strain of influenza and humans have little to no natural immunity to it. The H1N1 flu virus has spread quickly around the world and in June 2009, the World Health Organization declared it a pandemic.

Plan ahead

- ▶ Learn how to recognize the flu symptoms and when you need to see a health care provider.
- ▶ Get the H1N1 flu vaccine when it becomes available.
- ▶ Speak to your family and friends about how you can help each other during the flu season.
- ▶ Stock up on essentials such as pain and fever medications, and easy meals.
- ▶ Have important phone numbers, such as your doctor's or pharmacist's, on hand.

Get your H1N1 Preparedness Guide

Carving the Halloween mangelwurzel

HineSight

Anne Hines

metronews.ca/hinesight

Recently, this column offered a Hinesight History of Thanksgiving. Due to the unprecedented success of this article (no one wrote in to complain), I give you The Hinesight History of Halloween.

Halloween is believed to have originated with the Celts, who held a fall festival called "Shamhainiglub." This is a Gaelic word. Gaelic is an ancient language in which a whole bunch of letters were strung together and then pronounced anyway the Gauls felt like. So the likely translation of Shamhainiglub is Halloween.

We've all heard the phrase, "Nasty, brutish and short." Nowadays, this means "a reasonable prediction for the current season of the Toronto Maple Leafs." In Celtic times it referred to "every bit of life all the time."

In late October, the Celts believed evil spirits roamed the Earth for three days. I don't know why it was only three. Perhaps by that time the demons were saying, "Gosh, life here is really nasty, brutish and short" and figured there was nothing more for them to contribute. But during those three days it was necessary to protect yourself by scaring them off.

One way of doing this was, apparently, to place human heads on sticks outside the village. A modern expert explains this custom as "a means of structuring, reinforcing and defending hierarchical relationships between communities." Loosely translated, this means "scaring the bejesus out of the other guy."

Later, actual heads were abandoned (as in, the practice was left off ... at least I think that's what it means) and vegetables carved with faces were used. The vegetable of choice was the mangelwurzel. I'm not making that up.

The proper way to carve a mangelwurzel was with a broadsword. You know, if Martha Stewart wanted to offer us real culinary excitement she'd go after food with large military weapons.

And a popular holiday sport was mangelwurzel hurling. By "hurling" I believe they meant "throwing," not the other thing. Though not having ever eaten a mangelwurzel, I can't be sure.

Eventually, the Celts realized they needed a less silly-sounding name for mangelwurzel and it was renamed "rutabaga." At that point it seemed easier just to go with pumpkins.

Nowadays, children roam at Halloween. Those who wonder what connection there could possibly be between demons and children need to meet the kid two doors down from me. And now, of course, our strategy is to be as nice as possible. It's the Canadian way.

Happy Halloween!

Electronic pay options a 'smart' proposal

InTransit

Adrienne Beattie

metronews.ca/intransit

Calgary Transit may be getting in line with what most other public transit operators in North America are already doing — offering electronic fare payment options. Hopefully, this move will spur other payment options, too.

Calgary Transit spokesperson Ron Collins says customers have been saying they want more options for payment.

It's true. I've been caught without the exact fare required. I generally carry a credit card or debit card over cash. While some transit authorities accept credit card and/or Interac payment, most have gone with prepaid cards.

That's what Calgary Transit would be going with — smart cards. While Collins says the details still need to be worked out, the cards would allow customers to tap the card equipped with a chip on machines when they board a bus or C-Train rather than buying individual tickets or passes.

This would make boarding more efficient for drivers who wouldn't have to check passes or count change. And it would make riding more efficient for commuters who could just carry their smart card. It would also reduce paper consumption and save time spent processing cash.

The cards could be topped up online or with cellphones or credit cards. Whether the smart card system will go ahead or not depends on $270 million from the federal government as part of a shared funding plan with the city and the province.

Collins hopes to see an electronic fare collection system in place by 2011.

Most other cities I checked with like Vancouver, New York City, Chicago and San Francisco have had convenient electronic payment options in place for years now, which led me to wonder what other kinds of creative payment options other cities have emploied?

In some cities you can have your monthly transit pass fee paid through a payroll deduction program. Ottawa's program is called ECOPASS and it saves money, hassles and paper. By signing up, ECOPASS holders are issued one pass with photo ID that is valid as long as the payroll deductions continue. ECOPASS holders save 15 per cent over those who purchase monthly passes.

Increasing incentives and payment options could only serve to increase ridership and revenues for Calgary Transit.

Deficit could reach $110B

Cuts, tax hikes may be needed as government bills pile up

The bills are coming in across the country, and they are hefty.

In the last two days, Ontario reported it will suffer a $24.7-billion deficit in the current fiscal year, almost double its March projection, and the federal government said it is already $23.7 billion in the red, only five months into its year.

With Quebec issuing an update next week, the TD Bank is also revisiting its report earlier this week that the total public sector shortfall will be at least $90 billion this year; it likely will be in the $100-$110 billion range.

TD Bank economist Derek Burleton says governments are creating such a debt elephant that they will need to cut spending drastically or even raise taxes to prevent Canada from falling into the deficit nightmare of the 1970s, '80s and '90s.

Bank of Montreal economist Douglas Porter agrees that governments will soon have to shift their attention from how to spend to stimulate the economy to how to kill the monster they created.

On Friday, Finance Minister Jim Flaherty told a business audience near Toronto that the government needed to pump spending in the face of a deep recession.

And he repeated the familiar mantra that Canada is "by far" in the best fiscal position among Group of Seven countries to pay off its mounting "Deficits will be so large they will cry out for the need of some restraint."

debts.

But economists say that distinction is carrying less weight with each new recalculation of upcoming shortfalls.

"I think we are going to reach an uncomfortable juncture, perhaps as early as next year, when the recovery is still relatively young, and yet deficits will be so large they will cry out for the need for some restraint," Porter said.

More energy investments in Canada likely, say analysts

POWER Canada is one of the few regions left in the world that has a multitude of bite-sized firms exploiting its vast oil and gas resources, making it fertile ground for reserve-hungry global players to launch acquisitions.

"I think that Canada is an attractive area because there are lots of relatively small independent companies in Canada, which are easier to acquire than perhaps other regions of the world, where big players are exploiting oil," said Tom Grieder, Asia Pacific analyst with IHS Global Insight in London.

Most recently, state-owned Korea National Oil Corp. agreed this week to buy Calgary-based Harvest Energy Trust for $4.1 billion in cash and debt.

Unrest in India prompts Ontario Ford plant closure

AUTO Violent strikes and protests at a parts supplier in India are forcing a one-week shutdown of Ford Canada's plant in Oakville, Ont., the automaker said Friday.

Ford spokeswoman Lauren More said the parts shortage is the result of labour unrest at the supplier, Rico Auto Industries, which produces transmission components.

Reports say auto workers in India's Haryana state have been engaging in increasingly violent strikes and protests after clashes between workers and police left one Rico employee dead last weekend.

Outsourcing

Major automakers are doing what they can to cut costs, including outsourcing parts production to lower-cost operations in India, China and Mexico.

"We are monitoring the situation and continue to work with Rico to reduce the impact on our operations," More said in an email.

A Canadian Auto Workers spokesman said the lull in operations at the plant, which employs about 3,000 people is a concern, but everyone hopes to be back at work soon. "We're getting closer to Christmas, and we don't want people laid off during this period of time," said Gary Beck, president of CAW Local 707.

Variable mortgages save over time: BMO

FINANCES Fixed mortgage rates may help you feel secure in your budgeting, but the Bank of Montreal says the more volatile variable rate mortgages can save you money in the long run.

The bank put out a report Friday showing that, over the past 30 years, variable-rate mortgages have been more cost-effective about 82 per cent of the time. That may come as a surprise to some after studies have shown many Canadians prefer a fixed-rate mortgage.

A fixed rate locks the borrower into a set interest rate for a certain period of time, while variable rates change along with interest-rate moves.

The green revolution is pretty much taking over our lives; from the clothes we buy, to the food we eat, to the perfume we wear. A handful of companies are coming up with perfumes devoid of synthetics and chemicals, responding to the increasing need to cut out the contact we have with unnatural substances and toxins. The question is, do we really know which are best?

"The world of perfumes is a world of dreams. The role of a perfumer is to create a smell someone will fall in love with; the industry rotates around the notion of pleasure" explains Olivia Giacobetti, one of the most respectable 'noses' in the perfume industry.

Having created signature scents for the likes of Guerlain, L'Artisan Parfumeur and Diptique, her latest collaboration with Honoré des Prés a 100 per cent biological perfume has made everyone follow her scent.

According to Giacobetti, claiming to be eco is simply not enough when it comes to creating a scent. She doesn't believe creating an eco perfume is a concept in itself — what you need is backbone, heaps of creativity.

"Try and imagine the perfume world through the eyes of an architect. A perfume that is 100 per cent biological, it's like building a house without concrete, bricks or steel. The end result will be only a straw house instead of a brick one. I set myself two rules; never attempt to build a brick house from straw, and never attempt to copy a synthetic perfume scent."

With the win, Howard has won the Grand Slam of Curling event for the fourth year in a row. He's Overall, Howard has won five of the past seven Grand Slam of Curling events. His eighth career Grand Slam win moves him into a tie with Wayne Middaugh for second place

With the loss, Koe fell to 0-6 all-time in Grand Slam finals.

"It's disappointing," said Koe. "We played good early that game and we really had a chance in the middle to get up a few on them ... We made some misses and they really jumped all over them."

Student cooks up the gold

LINA TOYODA

Vancouver Community College baking and pastry arts student Caitlin Mayo brought home dessert gold from the 2009 WorldSkills in Calgary last month.

Competing against the world's burgeoning pastry chefs over four days, Mayo, 20, won the people's choice award and the medallion of excellence.

The WorldSkills event promotes industry excellence on an international level with competitions in 45 skill categories in trades and technologies, including web design, robotics, cooking, welding and landscaping.

Her prized chocolate showpiece, which she described as "a modern and abstract take on the totem pole," took the people's choice award in the final presentation, when technical skills and the creativity of the young pastry chefs are culminated.

"I used vibrant colours and it was flashy, which is a very popular style right now," Mayo said. "Instead of faces, I used different shapes stacked on top of each other and it had a Haida-style raven as the main piece. It was a very eye-catching element."

Each country is represented by an expert who acts as a judge for a portion of the competition. Mayo explained that the highest and lowest scores are then thrown out and the final score is averaged.

"The judging is very subjective," she said. "There's even a category called 'finesse'."

She and her fellow competitors called the scoring system "the figure-skating of the 'Skills' world."

Mayo's passion for the art of pastries shows when she expresses her admiration for her competitors' chocolate showpieces.

"One of my favourites was from Austria," she says. "They did a beautiful peacock. How they put the tail together was amazing, and I liked France's showpiece. It was a fashion theme — a woman with a hat — and it had very clean lines."

Inspired by her mother during her childhood through baking cookies and other sweet things, Mayo said she knew what she wanted to do with her life at the age of 16 when she started her pastry-career training.

Rather than letting it be a disadvantage, Mayo in fact embraces Canada's culture and diversity into her pastry arts.

She says she has more creative freedom in a way, without the established influences and old cultural traditions of pastries in some European countries.

"We're a cultural mosaic. We take the best of everything and make it our own."

Tragedy and triumph

Jennifer Hudson happy a year after murder of family members

In the year since three members of her family were brutally killed in Chicago, Grammy and Oscar winner Jennifer Hudson has found ways to heal and start a new life.

And it appears the 28-year-old is happy again.

The actress and singer has gushed over her role as a new mother. She has started going out again, including an appearance at a New York gala just days ago. And she's poured herself into her work, from a gospel-tinged rendition of the national anthem at the Super Bowl months after the slayings to a VH1 Divas concert in New York last month.

"Her way of grieving is to put it all into her work and into her new baby," said Ian Drew, senior music editor at Us Weekly magazine. "She's celebrating what she has."

Now she is set to return to Chicago next month to film an ABC prime-time special in which she'll share memories of her childhood Christmases in her old neighbourhood and the church where she started singing.

It will be a bittersweet journey as she films Jennifer Hudson: I'll Be Home for Christmas, which is to air in December.

A year ago, just as her career was really taking off with roles in movies like Sex and the City and The Secret Life of Bees, Hudson had to return home for the worst reason possible.

On Oct. 24, 2008, the bodies of her mother, Darnell Hudson Donerson, 57, and brother, Jason Hudson, 29, were found in the family's home on the city's South Side. The body of her seven-year-old nephew, Julian King, was found days later in a sport utility vehicle on the city's West Side. All three had been shot.

Hudson has repeatedly declined to talk about publicly about the killings. She and her publicist declined interview requests from The Associated Press.

"She's heartbroken," said Bob Israel, 40, who was friends with Jason Hudson and lives near the Hudsons' Chicago home. "They were a close-knit family."

William Balfour, the estranged husband of Jennifer Hudson's sister, Julia, was charged with first-degree murder in the killings. Balfour pleaded not guilty and remains jailed.

The following days were tumultuous for Jennifer Hudson, including a trip to the Cook County medical examiner's office to identify King's body.

After the funeral and a star-studded memorial service, Hudson, who won her an Oscar in 2007 for her supporting role in Dreamgirls, spent the next few months away from the public eye.

By February, she had launched back into work, filming a video for If This Isn't Love, followed by the Super Bowl performance and a Grammy win for best R&B album for her self-titled debut CD.

These days, Jennifer Hudson is focusing on her son, David, named after her fiancé Daniel David Otunga.

Hudson recently talked with reporters about her son, saying she's looking forward to seeing "who he becomes, who he takes after, what he decides to do, if he'll sing."

Tatou channels Chanel

Film follows style icon's early days leading up to success

MARC-ANDRÉ LEMIEUX
Metro Canada

With a wide smile and a warm handshake, Audrey Tautou welcomes a reporter into her hotel room. After ordering a glass of water, she leans over and looks at her interviewer with big, dark eyes.

It's been a matter of only seconds, yet the porcelain-skinned actress has already managed to put the reporter firmly under her spell.

So when she confides that she shares the same fierce temperament as Coco Chanel — the famous French designer she plays in the latest film by Anne Fontaine — it's a little hard to believe.

"I was born that way, with a bit of an impulsive side," Tautou says. "I say what's on my mind. I'm not a hypocritical person. In fact, I'm a very poor liar."

The film, Coco avant Chanel, is loosely based on L'Irrégulière, the book by Edmonde Charles-Roux. It deals mainly with the designer's formative years, through being a small-time cabaret singer, a young woman passionately in love, a frustrated seamstress and an aspiring courtesan.

Though the film doesn't showcase the fashion maven's triumph, it does capture the birth of a style that, still to this day, defines the modern woman.

One scene shows the young rebel transforming her rigid corsets and feathered dresses into simple, practical outfits that reflect an active woman's lifestyle.

This film represents a total departure for Tautou. Three years ago, the actress was featured in sparkling jewels and plunging necklines in the film Hors de prix.

Miles apart from Irene, her sultry and adventurous character in the Pierre Salvadori comedy, the role she plays in Coco avant Chanel is also much more in line with her own outlook.

"Hors de prix allowed me to fully understand the effect a sexily dressed woman could have on the male population. I had never experienced that before!" says Tautou.

"That said, I prefer the mentality of Chanel, who invented a kind of sexiness that doesn't rely solely on a woman's physical appearance, but on her personality, her uniqueness, her strength of character."

Mika gets spacey with new album, single

MUSIC Where Mika's debut, Life in Cartoon Motion was about childhood, The Boy Who Knew Too Much is all about the darker side of adolescence.

And if you have seen the CD booklet — which features a miniature children's book about a group of characters called the Mubbins — or the video for the debut single We Are Golden — which features the singer dancing in his underpants in his bedroom — you might think either of these would be a sturdy device to which to hitch a show. But that would be too easy.

"It starts with my death, and that is told to you by a news reporter on the screen and Ian McKellen filmed the intro for me," says Mika. "It starts in 1955 with the first civilian to send himself into space because he's sick of life on Earth."

The harmonies are thick on the We Are Golden single, so thick that Mika even broke one of his own rules by layering many of his own vocals.

"'Golden' got a much bigger response (live) than 'Grace Kelly,' which is kind of heart-warming."

Artemis Fowl author handpicked for Hitchhiker's sci-fi series

BOOKS Bestselling Irish author Eoin Colfer knew he'd been handed the opportunity of a lifetime when he was asked to write a novel for the cult-classic Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy comic sci-fi series, penned by the late Douglas Adams.

But it wasn't immediately apparent to him that the project had its risks. If he couldn't satisfy the series' rabid fan base — of which he considers himself a member — the outcome could be ugly.

"After much deliberation — because I initially said it wasn't a great idea — I decided I really couldn't pass it up, an opportunity like this never comes along. It's not that it rarely comes along — for someone like me it would never come along," Colfer said in a recent interview.

"But the day before it came out I really started to realize what I had done and how much was riding on this, for me."

"I started to realize this could kill me, I might never write for adults again."

Colfer, 44, was hand-picked to write the sixth novel in the series by Adams's wife, who knew him from his Artemis Fowl books, which are targeted at teens and younger readers.

She wanted to have the new novel — titled And Another Thing — released to commemorate the 30th anniversary of the original Hitchhiker's story.

Dracula: Not quite dead yet

Dracula the Un-Dead

Author: Dacre Stoker, Ian Holt
Publisher: Viking Canada
Price: $34 (Hardcover)

More than 100 years ago, Bram Stoker published the gothic-horror classic Dracula. But that wasn't the count's last hurrah: Now, he's resurfaced as Dracula the Un-Dead, a sequel by Stoker's Montreal-born great-grandnephew Dacre and Dracula historian Ian Holt. The thrilling tale picks up 25 years after the original in London, centering on the son of Jonathan and Mina Harker, Quincey. Upon seeing a Dracula stage play, young Harker understands the horror his parents experienced when they helped slay the count. But his introduction to darkness is just beginning, as those who brought Dracula to his end are hunted down, raising suspicions about what happened when the vampire "crumbled into dust."

Frostbite

Author: David Wellington
Publisher: Three Rivers Press
Price: $17.99 (Paperback)

A job in the Northwest Territories turns into a life-changing nightmare for Cheyenne Clark in David Wellington's Frostbite. Cheyenne fears a wolf is about when she hears a howl in the night air. Her alarm becomes reality when the wolf attacks, biting her before she can get away. A stranger she meets brings Cheyenne to the cabin of his friend Montgomery Powell, who bears striking likeness to the wolf. Before long, Cheyenne becomes caught in a struggle with Powell, when she learns that she too has become a werewolf and must decide whether to stay embrace her new identity or reintegrate into her old life.

Thirst No. 1

Author: Christopher Pike
Publisher: Simon Pulse
Price: $12.99 (Paperback)

In the mid-1990s, young-adult fiction author Christopher Pike released The Last Vampire, a popular six-part series focusing on Sita, a 5,000-year-old vampire. Thirst No. 1 features the first three books in the series (The Last Vampire, Black Blood and Red Dice), with the second half set for release in 2010. Today, Sita (a teenager in appearance) has adopted the name Alisa. When the man who turned her into a vampire pursues her, Alisa protects herself by killing others. When she discovers and falls in love with Ray, the person key to her survival, Alisa must reconcile the mortal and immortal worlds to save Ray and herself. — BRIAN COULTON/ FOR METRO CANADA

Celebrity Buzz*Hilton valuables recovered

CRIME DOESN'T PAY Paris Hilton, who was burglarized last year of an estimated $2 million US in jewelry, has gotten most of her valuables returned by the LAPD, her rep confirms to people.com

"Paris went to the police station last night to retrieve her stolen belongings," her publicist Dawn Miller tells People. "She didn't get everything but fortunately most of her jewelry was returned. She is really pleased and thankful to the LAPD for their help."

Hilton, 28, is one of a string of celebrity victims of an alleged burglary gang comprised of mostly teenagers. Suspect Rachel J. Lee, 19, who detectives believe is the ringleader, was arrested in Las Vegas Thursday, and remains in custody. Lee had an apparent fascination with celebrity fashion, a source close to the case tells People.

Sudoku

For more/less challenging Sudoku puzzles, visit metronews.ca

HOW TO PLAY: Digits 1 through 9 will appear once in each zone — one zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine zones in the puzzle. Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same zone, row across or column down the entire puzzle.

Metro Recipe of the Day

Greek Pitas

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 cup (250 ml) plain yogurt
 - 1 cup (250 ml) diced peeled cucumber
 - 1 tsp (5 ml) dill weed
 - 1/4 tsp (1 ml) seasoned salt
 - 1/4 cup (50 ml) olive oil
 - 1/4 cup (50 ml) lemon juice
 - 2 tbsp (25 ml) Dijon mustard
 - 2 garlic cloves, minced
 - 1 1/2 tsp (7 ml) dried oregano
 - 1 tsp (5 ml) dried thyme
 - 1 1/4 lbs (625 g) lean boneless pork, thinly sliced
 - 6 pita breads, halved and warmed
 - 1 medium tomato, chopped
 - 2 tbsp (25 ml) chopped onion
- METHOD:
1. In small bowl, combine yogurt, cucumber, dill and seasoned salt; cover and refrigerate.

2. In large resealable plastic bag, combine oil, lemon juice, mustard, garlic, oregano and thyme; add pork. Seal bag and turn to coat; refrigerate 1 to 6 hours or overnight, turning occasionally.
3. Drain and discard marinade. In skillet, stir-fry pork about 4 minutes or until no longer pink. Stuff into pita halves; top with cucumber sauce, tomato and onion.

ARIES
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
You need to break out of your self-imposed exile and get back in the mainstream of life. Aries needs excitement, so do something that thrills you.

TAURUS
APRIL 21-MAY 21
You will speak your mind today without fear of the consequences, and if others don't like it that's just too bad.

LIBRA
SEPT 23-OCT 23
With Mars, planet of action, now transiting one of the more dynamic areas of your chart, you are sure to make a good impression.

SCORPIO
OCT 24-NOV 22
With the Sun your sign and articulate Mercury joining it there on Wednesday you know precisely what to say and do to get the response you are after.

GEMINI
MAY 22-JUNE 21
This may not be an easy time for you but this week's major planetary changes indicate you will rise to the challenges — and there will be plenty.

SAGITTARIUS
NOV 23-DEC 21
Doors that have been closed to you in the past are now opening wide, but you seem reluctant to take what is being offered.

CANCER
JUNE 22-JULY 22
You will be at your best over the next few days. Cosmic activity in the most dynamic area of your chart makes all things possible.

CAPRICORN
DEC 22-JAN 20
The most important thing this week is that you stay calm and don't get carried away with your own success.

LEO
JULY 23-AUG 23
Try not to commit yourself to anything that cannot be changed at a moment's notice. The cosmic climate is unsettled to say the least.

AQUARIUS
JAN 21-FEB 18
Force yourself to enjoy what you have to do today and before you know it, everyone will be patting you on the back.

VIRGO
AUG 24-SEPT 22
No one would deny that you have encountered some serious issues in recent weeks and have made a pretty good effort at sorting them out.

PISCES
FEB 19-MARCH 20
With the Sun now moving in your favor you're free to dream and encouraged to believe your dream will come true. Why shouldn't it?
